Phoenix Contact adopts innovative solutions with easescreen

Phoenix Contact, in collaboration with easescreen, has launched an innovative project that offers a central solution for displaying information on screens, covering a wide range of use cases.

Phoenix Contact, a leading company in automation technology, faced the challenge of implementing a central and efficient solution for information display. The goal was to unite diverse use cases into a single, integrated system.

To realize this project, various products from easescreen were used:

- easescreen Management Server
- easescreen POV (Point of View)
- easescreen Screenmanager

Additionally, third-party products for RFID detection and e-kiosk steles were integrated. This combination enabled a comprehensive solution that meets the specific requirements of Phoenix Contact.

The technology from easescreen allows for an efficient and appealing presentation of information. By implementing this solution and digital display, paper consumption was significantly reduced.

The integrated technology enabled the development of complex interactive applications, providing users with a better and more intuitive experience.

This collaboration between Phoenix Contact and easescreen impressively demonstrates how innovative technologies can be used to address the challenges of modern industry while contributing to sustainable development. By providing effective solutions for information display, the project helps optimize processes, conserve resources, and increase efficiency in various areas.
